

Ms. Gharib is the ADR Data Analyst for the Court of Special Appeals' ADR Division. She is responsible for managing the Division's administrative operations, statistical information, procurement needs and quality assurance processes. She collaborates with the Director and Deputy Director for program development and efficiency, and tracks and monitors incoming and pending cases. Ms. Gharib is trained in numerous mediation models and restorative justice processes and has implemented attained skills both as a past volunteer for conflict resolution centers, as well as in her current and past work responsibilities. She also has over eight years of experience teaching, tutoring, translating and interpreting in Arabic, and has worked with adults, children and various professionals in the field. Ms. Gharib received her bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland College Park in Family Sciences, with an emphasis in couples' relationships, and holds a MSc. from the University of Baltimore in Negotiation and Conflict Management.